Hi Brian and Ferial,

Below is our list of birthday requests for February. I've attached custom language for the notes to Hunter Biden and Chelsea Clinton and the standard hand-sign language we plan to use for the other individuals below, unless you have edits for any of them. Please let us know if any birthday letters should be removed from or added to this list.

Blaine-please confirm the letters marked as dual HS and let us know if OFL has any edits to the attached language.

Greg-please confirm the addresses below.

FOR THE RECORD:

Joe Biden: In the June 6 Section A, an article about Vice President Joe Biden and his emphasis on family reversed the order in referring to two of the daughters of his son Hunter. Naomi Biden is the oldest of Hunter's children, Finnegan the middle child.

Over nearly four hours, Biden never took a break. He might have stayed longer but for another commitment: The vice president flew back to Washington with his younger son, Hunter, arriving in time to attend the middle school graduation of Hunter's youngest daughter, Maisy.

Many politicians wrap themselves in the image of a loving family. Few actually live the role to the extent that Biden has done throughout his political career, according to political adversaries as well as allies. For years, he has been the patriarch of a sprawling family, one touched often by tragedy.

On election day in 2008, as he flew to Chicago to join then-Sen. Barack Obama to watch the returns, Biden told a reporter that his granddaughter Finnegan, Hunter's middle daughter, had been the person who "pushed the hardest" for him to accept when Obama offered him the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket.

FOR THE RECORD

June 6, 5:27 a.m.: An earlier version of this article reversed the order in referring to two of the daughters of Joe Biden's son Hunter. Naomi Biden is the eldest of Hunter's children, Finnegan the middle child.

Biden recounted the pitch she had made — first that "Obama needs you," but then a more personal one: The vice president's official residence was a mile and a half from her house.

For years, he said, family life had been centered on his home in Wilmington, Del., which was designed to be large enough for the extended family to all stay overnight around birthdays and holidays.

A move to Washington and the vice president's mansion would not disrupt those routines, he said then. "In a sense, it's maybe a little easier if we were to win," he said, without those almost daily Amtrak rides.

the World Food Program USA. They have a son-in-law, Howard, two daughters-in-law, Hallie and Kathleen, and are the proud grandparents of five incredible grandchildren: Naomi, Finnegan, Maisy, Natalie, and Hunter. The oldest of five sisters, Jill Jacobs was raised just outside of Philadelphia in Willow Grove, Pennsylvania by Bonny and Donald Jacobs, both of whom are now deceased.
